

2009: Designing Your Best Year Ever

“This is your chance to punch the reset button and start anew.”

How was 2008 for you? Was it great? Did you set new achievement records for yourself and your business? If so, now you can parlay that momentum and set some SBHAGs (Super Big Hairy Audacious Goals!) for 2009. Was it less than great? I have good news for you too, this is your chance to punch the reset button and start anew.

I love this time of the year. Jan. 1 is a chance to be reborn. No matter who you are or where you are now, everyone comes back to the starting line again. Once the clock strikes midnight on Dec. 31 all the pains, joys, successes, or failures are wiped clean and the door on the previous year shuts forever. All you bring forward are the wisdoms you have gained from the years thus traveled.

When the page flips on the calendar and you wake on Jan. 1, 2009, that could be the day, the first day, of Your Best Year Ever. It's a decision, and you can make that choice. You can decide—this is the one... this is the year I will set out to accomplish my forgotten dreams. No longer will I wait. No longer will I stand on the sidelines watching other people live their dreams. This is my time, my year. This is when I will get healthy, find the love I deserve, or give the love those around me deserve. This is the year I will live the life I was meant to live!

To help you in this quest, we went out and enlisted the very best experts available today. They are going to share their highly coveted insights and strategies for helping you get anything you want and anything you want to achieve in life—in 2009 and beyond.

I think you will find some inspiration for your own goals from our feature on what four entrepreneurs are doing to make 2009 their Best Year Ever (page 44). Then we offer the wisdom and insights of two of the true greats of the personal achievement movement—Stephen Covey on how to find your unique purpose (page 68) and a great, advice-packed article from my personal mentor, Jim Rohn, on principles for succeeding in any season of life (page 42).

And we are proud to present our cover story with Anthony Robbins, who will show you how to unleash your personal power (page 50). Be sure to listen to my interview with Tony on the DualDisc™ where he reveals the keys to keeping those resolutions for the New Year.

Make 2009 the year you let your greatness shine!
